Boney Legs!

First off Bony-Legs is way creepier than most villains in children's books nowadays. She looks like a complete creeper. She's a great character. Secondly, despite this is meant to be a bit creepy, it has a good message....that being kind and caring about others really pays off.

A sumptuously illustrated tour of the dreams of children from other cultures offers insight into the roles of legends and myths and includes the stories of Marco, who floats through the constellations over the Andes, and Kaia, who paddles along the shores of Haida Gwaii with animal companions. By the award-winning author of Jill.

This book chronicles the unbreakable spirit of an Inuit girl bullied by a teacher while attending an Arctic residential school.

"The first part of the book covers anatomy and biomechanics of the pelvis, and the second part includes 26 exercises for yoga practitioners and students specifically focused on strengthening the pelvis"--

An extraordinary retelling of the Baba Yaga myth, this debut novel will wrap itself around your heart and never let go.

It is 1923. Evangeline (Eva) English and her sister Lizzie are missionaries heading for the ancient city of Kashgar on the Silk Road. Though Lizzie is on fire with her religious calling, Eva's motives are not quite as noble, but with her green bicycle and a commission from a publisher to write A Lady Cyclist's Guide to Kashgar, she is ready for adventure. In present day London, a young woman, Frieda, returns from a long trip abroad to find a man sleeping outside her front door. She gives him a blanket and pillow and in the morning finds the bedding neatly folded and an exquisite drawing of a bird with a long feathery tail, some delicate Arabic writing, and a boat made out of a flock of seagulls on her wall. Tayeb, in flight from his Yemeni homeland, befriends Frieda and, when she learns she has inherited the contents of an apartment belonging to a dead woman she has never heard of, they embark on an unexpected journey together. A Lady Cyclist's Guide to Kashgar explores the fault lines that appear when traditions from different parts of an increasingly globalized world crash into each other. Beautifully written and peopled by a cast of unforgettable characters, the novel interweaves the stories of Frieda and Eva, gradually revealing the links between them, and the ways in which they each challenge and negotiate the restrictions of their societies as they make their hard-won way towards home.
