China has achieved remarkable, sustained economic growth under the policies of ‘ reform and opening up ’ put into place since the late 1970s. China ’ s industrial policies have nurtured a large group of firms with high profits and a high market capitalisation.

However, few people in the West can name a single Chinese firm.

During the modern era of capitalist globalisation firms from the high income countries have spread their business systems across the world. This has presented a profound challenge for industrial policy in developing countries, including even China, the world ’ s second largest economy. China is unique among large latecomer developing countries in having reached the position of being a huge, fast-growing economy, with a tremendous impact on the rest of the world, but lacking a substantial group of globally competitive firms. This volume explores this paradox. Fully understanding the industrial policy challenge that the era of capitalist globalisation has produced for China is essential for harmonious international relations.

This book discusses in a lucid and easy-to-understand manner, the theory and practise of international business in the Indian context. It provides an in-depth coverage of the subject matter, with the help of numerous real life examples and cases. Along with this, a rich and user-friendly pedagogy makes it useful for the students of business management and other disciplines, where international business is taught as a course. This new edition endeavors to make the book economy, as well as the positive impact of the massive rescue package that was implemented in response to the crisis. Part Two focuses on the challenge of globalization for China ' s industrial policy. After more than two decades of industrial policy, China still has a negligible number of large firms that are competitive in global markets. China ' s experience presents a fundamental challenge to traditional concepts of industrial policy and development. Part Three examines China ' s international relations – in particular, its relationship with the US and the interactions between the two countries in the East and South China Seas.
