~~Trading Should Know About~~

Price action trading is a discipline of technical analysis, which means that price action traders exist for as long as technical analysis has been used in the markets. Since price-action traders rely on price-charts and up-to-date market prices, this trading technique gained traction and became more popular with the advance of IT technology and computers in the 80s and 90s.

Price action trading is the discipline of making all of your decisions in trading from a clear price chart. This implies that there are no lagging FX indicators present, except for, perhaps, some moving averages that may help to determine dynamic resistance and support areas, along with trend direction as well.
