In the Wake: On Blackness and Being – oneKIN

Christina Sharpe’s In the Wake is a painfully beautiful analysis of Blackness and the myriad ways black diasporic identities have transformed in the aftermath of the transatlantic slave trade. Sharpe makes a critical contribution to our understanding of the roots of slavery not as a singular historical event, but instead as a signifier of the ongoing colonial project that is anti-Blackness.

About this Event. Following the speed of catastrophe in 2020, it's even more important for us to work towards a healing justice that reckons with anti-Black harm and violence, and that confronts our 'past that is not past' (Christina Sharpe, In The Wake). Join us as we discuss and imagine healing justice rooted in Black Liberation and feminisms. This roundtable is about coming together to orientate ourselves towards a different reality; it's about working together across multiple ...
