This dissertation summarizes the research of 30 court referred, custody dispute cases assessing the behaviors of the parents and their children to determine the presence or absence of Parental Alienation Syndrome (PAS). The criteria to determine the parent and their children's behaviors is Dr. Gardner's definition of Parental Alienation Syndrome. The parents were placed in three categories (mild, moderate or severe) based on their symptoms and behaviors. Their children (59) were then categorized into three groups (mild, (moderate, severe).

This investigation seeks to determine additional

of PAS. Reluctance by Findings and

Conclusions: It

appears the data from this study corroborates observations and definitions of Parental Alienation

Syndrome. The data from this study indicates that the

Sample

Character in the mild PAS category have children who exhibit fewer negative behaviors toward the alienated parents whereas children whose parents are in the severe category exhibit more negative behaviors towards the alienated parents. This study found that the more negative behaviors a child exhibits towards an alienated parent, the more severe their parent's symptoms and behaviors.

Consequently, there is more severe alienation from the alienated parent and the more disruption to that parent-child relation. PAS is a
